Salmon River Art Guild 2010 Regional Art Show

The judges for the show are:

Gloria Dawson Teats of Slate Creek, Idaho and Marla Krigbaum of New Meadows, Idaho.

Gloria Dawson Teats, began her formal art training in 1977, studying in classes offered by Walla Walla Community College at the Valley Art Center in Clarkston, Washington. Born and raised in central Idaho, Gloria's paintings reflect the splendor of this particular part of the country. Known for her landscapes in oils, she likes to work "alla prima", going from start to finish without letting the paint dry, to maintain the excitement of a piece. Gloria continues to take workshops from many well known artists and has won many top awards in northwest shows. Gloria taught oil painting for over twenty years and still teaches landscape painting workshops.

Marla Krigbaum, originally from Ohio, has lived in Idaho for forty two years. She began painting and entering local and state competitions in 1987. "Primitive" best describes her way of painting and she uses acrylic on Masonite. She likes to paint a story and enjoys using the expression of color. Marla's work has been chosen for five St. Luke's Christmas cards. The Idaho Black History Museum and McCall Hospital Auxiliary have selected her art for fund raising posters. In addition, Marla has been chosen to exhibit her art in major northwest exhibits throughout her career. She continues to paint for pleasure and do commission work.
